Stuff & Minutes

October 7, 1997

Our October meeting made its usual start at exactly 8:00 PM. (Robbie is getting so punctual at starting the meetings on time its downright boring. I remember when Woolley, Hood and even Barton were President, we could count on meetings starting at least 10 or 15 minutes late.) All Officers were in attendance.

President Bridges reviewed the evening's raffle prizes, they ranged from caps and tee shirts, thanks to the King family, to software and some oddball hardware.

The first part of the meeting was reviewing our meeting hall problem. As of now there are no new developments. The only places that have been found are to far away to be practical. So keep looking or we will be meeting in your bedroom! The latest word on the library's closing date is the 8th of December. Meetings scheduled after that will be allowed but the library itself will be closed.

The clubs D.O.M. Bob Scholar demonstrated this months 8 Bit Floppy which is Volume 15, #10. One of the programs titled EGYPT.BAS is particularly valuable, it allows conversion of dates from the ancient Egyptian calendar to the modern calendar. This program is capable of conversions like calculating the age of really old things. One might even be able to figure out Bob Scholar's age. (Well it might not be quite that good, but you get the idea.)

Don Safer made his second consecutive 64 Bit report. (Two reports in a row? He must be getting ready to run for Office.) Don reported more game releases for the Jaguar game system. Seem to be more games being released now than when Atari was actively selling the systems.

Being nothing more the meeting was adjourned at 9:30.

Jim Moran - Secretary

Stuff

These notes are being written on the 28th, after the big drop in the stock market of last Monday and partial recovery today the 28th. Of interest to computer people is the fact that the only stock in the Standard & Poors 500 that didn't lose money was APPLE. As it happens, that was the day Steve Jobs announced his return as Apple's headman. (Think that will make any difference?)

Something new, AOL is sending its program out on CD ROM. (I guess that's the end of my free disk supply. Oh well all good things have to come to an end sometime.)

D.O.M.?

I was called out of town at the very last minute last meeting, so I didn't get to participate in the DOM raffle. Not knowing who won, I can only assume that it will be well done and on budget...

On the other hand....

I guess I'll wander thru the archives and dredge up some old goodies just in case.

Or, maybe I'll cruise the Net and find some new goodies.

Old or new, we'll have some kinda goodies. Come and be entertained.

... saw in the paper this morning that one of the football players at DeLaSalle High School has a first name of --- Atari!

His folks must have been really cool....
